Woman Confronts Woolwich Attackers¹

A mother-of-two, who confronted one of the two suspected killers of a soldier in Woolwich, said he told her they wanted "to start a war in London tonight".

Ingrid Loyau-Kennett, a mother-of-two and cub scout leader with training in first aid, confronted the men, telling the pair to hand over their weapons and warning them: "You are going to lose."

She said she first saw the victim lying on the street. "When I saw this guy on the floor I thought it was an accident - then I saw the guy was dead and I could not feel any pulse.

[Editor's note: if the dead man had been BEHEADED, then she would not have checked for a pulse!]

"And then when I went up there was this Black guy with a revolver and a kitchen knife, he had what looked like butcher's tools and he had a little axe, to cut the bones, and two large knives, and he said 'Move off the body'.

"So I thought 'OK, I don't know what is going on here' and he was covered with blood."

The 48-year-old [woman], from Helston, Cornwall, told The Daily Telegraph: "I thought I had better start talking to him before he starts attacking somebody else.

[Editor's note: notice, she did not claim to have seen the dead man attacked and killed.]

I thought these people usually have a message so I said 'What do you want?' "I asked him if he did it and he said 'Yes', and I said 'Why?' and he said because he has killed Muslim people in Muslim countries, [the Black man] said he (the corpse) was a British soldier and I said 'Really?'

[Editor's note: I have seen this on Law and Order. It is always EASIER when the suspect confesses. I like how the Black man declares to the White lady that the dead person was a soldier. Obviously, there was no indictia to help her ascertain that FACT, otherwise.]

"I said 'Right now it is only you versus many people, you are going to lose, what would you like to do?' "And he said 'I would like to stay and fight!'"

Other Witnesses Reveal Details [sic]

Her confrontation emerged as other witnesses [sic] revealed details of the horrific machete attack [sic] on the soldier.

[Editor's note: there are no allegations in this article, or elsewhere, that anyone saw active attacks and or blows with a machete, or hatchet, or knife, against a living person.]

One witness, identified as James Heneghan, said he and his partner saw two black men attack a young man aged around 20-years-old in a Help for Heroes T-shirt with kitchen knives like he was "a piece of meat".

[Editor's note: yes, you cut meat, like it is a piece of DEAD meat – because the man was already dead. Recall the totaled car, from which the body was probably dragged, adjacent to th street scene.]

"They were hacking at this poor guy, literally," [Heneghan] told LBC radio.

"They were hacking at him, chopping him, cutting him. "They then stood around, waving knives and a gun, asking people nearby to take pictures of them "as if they wanted to be on TV or something".

[Editor' note: As with all the other witnesses, Heneghan failed to claim that the victim was alive prior to the hacking. Heneghan provides no description of gushing or oozing blood. But at least the perpetrators told the sheep to TAKE pictures.]

[Heneghan] said they were running up and down the road, urging people to take pictures. "In my opinion, they were waiting for the police to arrive to be shot by the police. That's the only thing I can think," Mr Heneghan said.

[Editor's note: nothing consistent with a false flag here.]

When armed police arrived several minutes later, "the man with the beanie hat, the tall guy, he charged at the police vehicle".

Julia Wilders, who lives near the scene, said: "We were driving back and my husband said to me 'Don't look, they're resuscitating someone'. But apparently they were stabbing him."

She said she later saw one of the attackers run towards police clutching two meat cleavers.

"He ran towards police before they could even get out of the car, and it looked like the other one was going to lift the gun up," the 51-year-old said.

Others took to Twitter to describe the events, with one user, writing on the account @Boyadee, describing a female officer "taking out" one of the men "like Robocop".

[Editor's note: Great meme, women soldiers. Put them on the frontline – heroines, like Jessica Lynch. <http://apolyton.net/showthread.php/87985-Jessica-Lynch-rescue-was-a-fake>]

Joe Tallant, 20, saw one man holding a gun and a knife, and another holding two knives. He described how he saw the victim on the floor and the men asking onlookers to call the police.

[Tallant] said: "I looked on the floor and I saw a dead body and then I saw one of the men walking around the body."

[Editor's note: ANOTHER witness explaining that the body was already dead. Tallant saw no evidence of a murder or crime.]

When the officers arrived, Mr Tallant said the attackers "walked towards the police car with their weapons and a police lady jumped out and shot them both".

Two suspected Muslim fanatics had allegedly attacked the victim in the street a short distance from the Royal Artillery Barracks after apparently knocking him down with their car.

Witnesses said they set about the soldier with a number of weapons, which appeared to include knives and a meat cleaver, while shouting the name of "Allah".

They apparently encouraged passers-by to video them. One of the alleged attackers was filmed wielding a bloodied meat cleaver.

[Editor's note: every image of the cleaver shows no wet blood. Hmm. Regardless, there are no eyewitnesses who saw a blow struck against a living victim.]
