

Dear Adam Curry,

I am keeping with the tradition of the No Agenda Show by writing you about a complaint regarding John C. Dorvok.

My complaint is of course frivolous in comparison to what all John has done for me. I only bring up this criticism of him because he has been so critical of himself, yet able to overlook such a deep seated speech habit.

This habit is common with much younger people than John, or even yourself. The pattern consists of saying "ya" (as in slang for yes) and then "No" immediately after. This pattern happens before responding to something the "speech offender" agrees with.

I believe the quick "ya-NO" is to agreement, that the unnecessary "so" is to making a statement.

Only out of respect and love for you both do I bring this to your attention. Thank you for The No Agenda Show.

Sincerely, Lane Rau
